The perfect combination of comfort, lightness and resistance

The pair of Aigle Vedur shoes for men, designed in leather and synthetic, characterizes the excellence and experience of this world-renowned French brand.

Their waterproof and windproof design, and their quality of manufacture will make them essential allies in all circumstances, due to their quality of manufacture. It is specially intended for the outdoors, hunting, hiking, travel, DIY and any other outdoor activity, and regardless of the use, whether professional or leisure.

Designed to last, they do not compromise on user comfort, breathability and lightness, allowing you to handle long walks or treks without worry.

Its leather and synthetic design, combined with a stone guard at the front and a heel protector, and equipped with a grippy rubber sole, makes it resistant to difficult and steep terrain.

Braving the most severe weather and weather conditions, they provide you with significant and pleasant thermal comfort in winter, via their waterproofing and padded collar, as well as in summer, thanks to their lightness and breathable technology.
